

THANK YOU, MIDWEST AIRLINES STAKEHOLDERS.

Following the public disclosure of our proposal to combine Midwest Airlines and AirTran Airways, we received a number of unsolicited and very positive comments from Midwest shareholders, employees and customers. We are grateful for your comments.

A sampling of those sentiments include:

“There’s a tremendous amount of potential in this merger. I think [AirTran Airways] will add service out of Milwaukee. The best engine for growth is a low fare.”

Former Midwest Marketing Manager, Jay Sorensen, as quoted in the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel

“...[AirTran Airways] cut a rational and understandable deal for the consumer...”
Travel Columnist, Joe Brancatelli, as quoted in the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel

“They [Midwest] gave it no discussion. They just rejected it.”
Midwest Connect Captain and union leader, Brian Belmonti, as quoted in the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel

“...Realistically, they’re [Midwest] not going to be more than they are now unless they merge with somebody.”
Aviation Consultant, Stuart Klaskin, as quoted in the Orlando Sentinel

“AirTran offers the opportunity for job growth, increased flights and a general economic upturn for the area.”
Milwaukee resident, Charles Veit, as quoted in the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel

“We do think this deal is going to get done. This is going to be a great deal for Midwest.”
Morningstar Financial Consultant, Brian Nelson, as quoted in the Chicago Sun-Times

We appreciate your understanding that the value of this proposal hinges on Midwest’s management and Board sitting down with us to discuss our proposal.

By voicing that you want to know how the merger would benefit you is encouraging.

Our goal is to take two already great airlines and make one that is even better.

For more information, go to www.airtran.com/midwest.

AirTran[™]